BUCKNER TALKS.

The Chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee Interviewed.

The National Banks To Be Continued
...Resignation of John C. Nowell
Fred Douglass Marries a White Woman—Notes.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—Chairman Buckner, of the house committee on banking and currency, stated that the disposition of the committee at present seemed to be to await the action of the senate financial committee. He thought that public sentiment was opposed to his bill to substitute treasury notes for those of national banks on account of a prejudice created by advocates of flat money, and that congress would finally agree upon some plan for continuing the national banks. He thought it probable that the Potter bill, with some amendments, would eventually be adopted by a majority of the committee. In reply to a question whether it would affect the banks injuriously if they were to suggest legislation, he said: "It does not do so, but it could do any harm." The trouble, however, with the banks is that they are not members of congress. Each has his own ideas of what ought to be done, and scarcely any two agree upon the same measure. You must have observed," he said, "that the new banks organized within the year are taking the largest amount of circulation allowed by law. The national banking system is popular, not so much on account of the circulation as because of the frequent inspections and its security to depositors. Still people do not seem able as yet to comprehend how banks can exist without issue of notes, but I think in the course of time we will come to the conclusion that it is quite reasonable to let the government do the printing."

The objection is made that it would not be safe to put it within the power of congress to control the volume of the currency. Congress has already power to control the business of the country, and exercises it constantly by tariff and revenue laws and by treaties. There are always some men in congress who make their business to know all about some one subject, and members who have not studied the question fully upon them for information how to vote. This, however, is not a practical question at present, but will come up in the future after the election.

"You think then that this congress will provide for a continuation of the national banking system so long as enough of the national debt remains unpaid to serve as a basis of circulation?"

"That seems to be the sentiment of the majority of the banking committee. The banks of issue will never be revived."

The National Law-Makers.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—The senate passed the following resolution for the relief of the Greeley expedition, with an amendment that the party be volunteers. The resolution in regard to clerks for senators was amended to provide that they receive $6 per day and be appointed only for the session. A resolution was passed that the remains of Gen. Ord be removed from Havana to Washington. Bills were introduced for the conservation of forests on the national domain, and for the protection of the pay back of Indians against the Chinese government. Some work was done on the Alaska civil government bill. The state refused to adjourn to Monday.

In the house of representatives a bill was introduced providing that pensions for total disability be $8 a month, without regard to rank. A bill was passed making an appropriation of $2,750,000 to pay the claims of rebels on rebates or tolls. A bill was reported appropriating $160,000 for a public building at Chicago. A joint resolution to prohibit contractors to the secretary of interior to obtain an emoluments assistant clerk of the committee on pensions. The house refused to concur in the senate amendment to the civil service bill.

National Board of Trade.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—The national board of trade, which is composed of trading agents and corporations, to whom the Columbia and Willamette rivers, in Oregon. The question of the Illinois & Michigan canal and the construction of the Hemlock canal was discussed. After a full discussion on bankruptcy legislation a resolution was passed urging congress to enact a bankruptcy law embodying the general principles of the Lowell bill. The various subjects relating to American shipping interests were referred to a committee of five, which was instructed to report in three weeks. The report of the committee will furnish material for future deliberations, and the Rivers and Harbors bill will also come up for consideration and discussion. The delegates to the convention invited a number of senators and representatives to a banquet at Willard's hotel.

Marriage of Fred Douglass.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—Fred Douglass was married to Miss Helen M. Pitts, a white lady who has been filling the position of clerk in his office. The groom is 65, and the bride 35 years of age. Mrs. Douglass is said to be very handsome and peculiarly white. She is a member of the Woman Suffrage association, and has been a contributor to Mrs. Winslow's publication known as the "Alpha." The marriage took place at the Congregational church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Dr. Grinnell, pastor of the Fifteenth street congregation. The wedding was simple, with no refreshments, and Mr. Douglass' daughter, who is still not known of the affair, at a late hour, immediately after the wedding, the newly-married couple repaired to the groom's residence in West Washington.

John C. New's Resignation.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—A special agent of the treasury, Hon. John C. New, assistant secretary of the treasury, has arrived home. To a correspondent he stated that he had resigned his position, and would remain here to attend to his newspaper, The Journal, and his pressing private business. Neither the president nor Secretary Folger was in Washington when he left, and his resignation was left for the former. Mr. New has been assistant secretary since Mr. Arthur became president.

Another Preliminary Publication.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—Interior department officers are somewhat annoyed at the publication in New York of the government directors' report of the Union Pacific railroad, before its reception at the department. They consider it a discourtesy not to be overlooked, and the matter will be inquired into. There is a suspicion in some quarters that the report has been used in quartering for stock jobbing purposes.

Fraudulent Land Entries.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—For the week ending Thursday the general land office held 49 entries because of fraud seventy-eight entries, all located in the west.

The Shipping Question.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—Mr. John Koch, the shipbuilder, was before the house committee on shipping. He advocated the protection of American shipbuilders, and such a modification of the laws as will enable them to procure materials from other countries to be used in shipbuilding free of duty. He also advocated subsidies for American shipyards until shipyards upon the same principle as those adopted by England and France.

Reconsidered the Matter.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—The Senate committee on public lands has reconsidered its former action to report favorably the nomination of Brewster Cameron to be recompensed for services at Tucson, Arizona, value of public money at Tucson, Arizona, and will withhold it for the present.

An Astonishing Item.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—Eighteen

DEATH IN THE MINE.

Over Fifty Men Entombed in a Coal Mine.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—The published statements that Assistant Secretaries New and French are about to resign, are officially denied at the treasury department.

Washington Notes.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 25.—The newest batch of bills before congress for public buildings calls for the erection of fifty-nine structures. Fifty-five bills of this character now pending would require the expenditure of $6,295,000.

C. W. Tyson, a committee stenographer in the last congress, testified before the house committee on accounts that Speaker Pease forced him to resign, in order that he might be given to the speaker's nephew.

It is Decker, a former labor agitator, who has accepted private secretary to Gen. George, who had failed to secure him a position in the employ of the house.

The house committee on commerce listened to arguments by the vice president of the Pennsylvania road to regulate interstate commerce, his chief opposition being to any restraint upon railroad pools.

Opera-Goers Disappointed.

General Gas Bank on a Baltimore Audience—Alleged Reasons.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 25.—A disappointed assembly of people could hardly be found than that had assembled at the Academy of Music to hear Miss Gerster sing in the opera "Elisir d'Amore." The cause of the disappointment was the announcement that Miss Gerster would not appear. All the tickets which had been sold for the performance were redeemed at the box-office, and the opera "Ernani" substituted for "Elisir d'Amore." Upon inquiry it was learned that Miss Gerster had arrived in this city, and left for New Haven, Conn., to take the part of Madama Gerster had not arrived on any train at Jersey City.

Death Wedded Her.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 25.—Miss Lena Goettig aged 13, a girl in a suburban village, was today buried, but was, instead, carried to her grave. Six young ladies, attired in deep black, were bairns of the deceased, and unusual spectacle attracted an audience during the funeral. Miss Goettig's death was the result of a burning accident. She was enveloped in flames and burned from head to foot in spite of the frantic efforts of her mother and sister to smother the flames, both being severely burned. Shortly before her death Miss Goettig had an interview with her lover. The scene was a deeply affecting one. The girl, who had been suffering terrible torture before she died, said to her mother: "I am dying, but I am not afraid." Her mother replied: "Don't be afraid, don't feel blue, because Christmas is coming, and they are all buying their slippers of Hamming & Son, where you will find the finest assortment in the city."

THE GAYHEAD DISASTER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The annual report of the government directors of the Union Pacific railroad has been transmitted to the secretary of the interior regarding the "rapacious alliance" with the Chicago & Rock Island, and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad companies. The report states that the company has been subjected to rival roads, which practically parallel the main line of the Union Pacific from Omaha to Ogden, the former the Union Pacific to the latter the alliance." The report shows an increase of the funded debt of the road for the year ending June 30, 1883, over the preceding year of $1,429,925.00.

Zura Burns Mardon.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—A telegram from Peoria states that an old negro has been discovered after a long search, at whose home Zura Burns stayed the night before the murder, and from whence she was taken by Carpenter about midnight of that day. Dr. Bellfield, of Chicago, has sworn before the grand jury at Lincoln that the hair pins found in Carpenter's buggy were made on the same machine that made the pins which Zura wore. Hair pins are made of steel further evidence against Carpenter.

The Entanglement of the Irish Franchise Denounced—Dynamite Scene in London—News from Egypt and Soudan.

CONDENSED NEWS.

DUBLIN, Jan. 25.—An important political meeting was held here, under the auspices of Conservatives. The principal speech of the evening was made by the Right Hon. William Henry Smith, ex-ordnary of the admiralty and member of parliament for Westminster. He vigorously denounced the enlargement of the franchise in Ireland, and suggested that it was the intention of the government by giving the ballot to the property holders, to practically disfranchise the Conservatives in those boroughs, where the land holders were now in a majority. He also attacked the hesitating and weak-kneed policy in regard to Egyptian affairs pursued by the government, which had vacillated until the last moment, and then dispatched Charles Gordon on a hopeless mission. He declared that the ministry was directly responsible for the disasters in the Soudan, and that the blood of Hicks Pasha and his army was on the head of Mr. Gladstone.

Col. E. R. Kier Hermon, the Conservative member for County Dublin, followed in a similar vein. He advised as the best protection against the aggressions of the Irish Nationalists the organization of a new society throughout Ireland which should be free from religious coloring, and invite to its membership both Orangemen and Catholics as long as they were loyal to England and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

A Glorious Good Time by the Boys in Blue.

THE BANQUET.

The banquet given by the members of W. H. Sergeant Post No. 20, G. A. R., in the Guards' armory, last evening, in honor of the Department Encampment, was a grand affair. Owing to the large number of delegates in attendance from abroad, the committee in charge were compelled to issue tickets of admission to citizens, which they distributed quite liberally; yet the hall did not have a capacity to accommodate one-tenth of those who desired to gain admission and listen to the veterans while they recited the exciting scenes that transpired during '61-'65. At least twelve hundred hundred people crowded into the armory, many of whom were ladies. The greater portion of this audience were provided with seats, yet the aisles were crowded with those who were content to occupy standing room. Long before the time for the exercises to commence, the people who had assembled early in the evening became impatient, and the bell was set in motion by Department Commander Phil Cheek, Jr., of Baraboo, who struck up the grand old chorus "Marching through Georgia," the old veterans and many of the ladies joining in the chorus. At the conclusion of this song, Surgeon-General Henry Palmer, who had been appointed "master of ceremonies" came forward, and said—

Dr. PALMER: Comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic: A year ago at your annual session you resolved to come to Janesville to hold your eighteenth annual encampment; you're here in overwhelming force; you have besieged our town and ask its capitulation on our terms. I will refer you to our worthy mayor, Comrade St. John, who will offer you terms of capitulation and words of welcome. (Applause.)

Mr. St. John rose from his seat on the platform and said:

Veteran soldiers, gentlemen: It is my pleasure to bid you welcome to our city, to this your eighth annual encampment. I am glad to say to you, but you have listened to your tales of war-like deeds until like poor Desdemona, "we have learned to love you for the dangers you can pass." (Laughter.)

I recollect shortly after the war, or a few years after the war, speaking with one of the most distinguished chieftains of the south. I undertook to pump him, ask him what his idea was about the war. He closed my mouth in a minute with the pathetic, sublime exclamation, "the war? that was a thousand years ago!" The rebellion was to him of no more account than the origin of manhood in the year 600.

I tell you my comrades, every rebel flag which is folded and laid away preserves in its creases and wrinkles and in woven in its warp and woof, the fervent inspiration of rebel hero and patriot, of which it was the emblem. And every star on the flag is a symbol of national sentiment which is associated with the rebel mind and heart, with the "lost cause" of treason, is in itself a new treason, and is pregnant with the unfulfilled hope and promise of all the rebel years.

So I say that we must be careful in these things, and we must regard this fact that the rebellion is in its grave; then let it lie. There let it fester and smoulder, not exchange compliments with those fellows down there; or will not a party to play numeray or to any mockery of form by which it may be inferred that so far as my little influence may go, that the righteous judgment which has been pronounced against the crime of rebellion shall be weakened in any human mind. (Applause.)

I want to say one thing more, and that is this: that if those fellows down there want to celebrate the rebellion they had better do it the way the Quakers do in their meetings—say nothing about it. (Laughter.) I recollect shortly after the war, or a few years after the war, speaking with one of the most distinguished chieftains of the south.
